When traveling by bike to an area with different elevations be sure to bring clothing for cool and warm weather. It may be warm at lower elevations but at upper elevation such as tall mountains it can be very cold. The ride is not enjoyable when you are freezing or when you are roasting. To be the most prepared pack a light weight windbreaker and a medium jacket. This will be easier to dress in layers if needed.

The Classy Biker... talks

The Classy Biker is needing some RR. It is never ending. Our trip out west was wonderful. We had the best time. Lower New Mexico and Arizona are beautiful. The scenery changes drastically. One minute we are in flat land. Then desert then mountains then desert again. Some of the mountain roads in the Gila National Forest are very steep and very curvy. Beautiful but scary. Especially when the roads are part gravel.

We stayed in nice hotels and bed & breakfasts. One of the coolest is the bed and breakfast in Tombstone. It was a bordello back in the late 1800s. Some of the old portraits were still hang on the walls. Tombstone is a fun place, an authentic western town. Some of the old bars are still there. Crystal

Palace is one of the bars that the Earp boys frequented back in there day. The bar that was the most fun was Big Nose Kate's. It has great atmosphere, good food and you can have your picture take on the bar, the piano, in a old wooden coffin ( it is propped up against the wall) or at a table playing cards.

Near the border of Arizona and Mexico (about 10 miles) there is a town named Bisbee. It is located in the mountains. I never knew that there were mountains in south Arizona. It is a clean beautiful old town. It was establish in the mid 1800s as a mining town. We were told it was a good place to visit and it was.
